

Hague Australia is committed to the ongoing reduction of the environmental impact of all its operations.

- Hague Australia plans for continuous improvement in environmental performance and is committed to the prevention of pollution through the following objectives and activities:
- Operating in full compliance with all applicable environmental legislation relative to our products, processes, and activities.
- Reduction of waste to landfill, effective use of energy sources and assessment of substances and materials for re-use and recycling.
- Reduction in the use of organic solvents whilst maintaining or improving the quality of our products to our customers.
- Environmental evaluation of new developments in technology, processes, substances and materials and the application of best practice environmental options and techniques.
- Encourage our employees, suppliers and customers to understand and recognise their obligations regarding environmental protection and continual improvement.
- Carry out regular environmental audits of all aspects of the Company business.
- Develop effective means for responding to accidents or emergencies and thereby avoiding or reducing the effects of the environment
- The Company Board will regularly review these environmental objectives and related targets.

Hague will make this policy available to interested parties on request.
